Adversarys Brief on appeal of order
In denial of In Forma Pauperis

To: The Honorable Legrome D. Doves,

This is an appeal from the denial of the Petition to proceed In Forma Pauperis by the United States Bankruptcy Court Judge Ashley M Chan in adversary proceeding captioned above, the adversary Plaintiff is presently separated from the file

Procedural History

To the best of the Adversarys recollection he was informed on (August 15, 2016) that the debtor would be filing a bankruptcy to Elude payment of a Judicial lien held by Lynch in the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas at No# 15-0308289,

On the day before the scheduled Sheriff's sale the debtor, and her Community Legal services attorney, appeared in the state court and petitioned the court to stay the sale solely on the premises of a future filing of a bankruptcy without any order or authority in the bankruptcy code extending the bankruptcy protections to such premises of future filings, and the state court stayed the sale.

By staying the sale the state court did deprive the adversary of his rights stated in the Pennsylvania Constitution at article I section 11 due process of law and "the Administration of justice without delay". It did so without stating what authority it had done so.

The adversary prepared an adversary complaint and In forma Pauperis Petition promptly filed and served them by US mail, and received notice of the Chapter 7 Bankruptcy at about the same time, the Bankruptcy Judge Ashley M. Chan denied the adversary's I. F. P. Petition without comment, and the adversary filed this appeal, and it is presumed jurisdiction was removed,

The adversary complaint claimed that the debt was not dischargeable pursuant to provisions of 523A and also sought a determination as to his right to recovery against the estate and all the interested parties for refusing to produce the insurance information ordered to be produced in the State Court by order of the court dated 9-15-15 of which the court and the adversary gave notice to all the interested parties in the Estate.

The Adversary claims that their refusal to produce that information obstructed the adversary's right to process pursuant to 84 P.S.C. § 3159 A(6) the right of the plaintiff to maintain an action against an indemnity insurer upon return of execution unsatisfied against the insured. Which are all the interested parties in the Estate,

The Debtors Counsel filed a motion to dismiss the adversary filed a response to the motion clarifying his position with distinction which distinguished his case from those cited by the Debtor Legal and Counsel.

The Bankruptcy Judge thereafter ordered the matter dismissed without comment, and presumably without jurisdiction where an appeal has been taken in the matter

The adversary then filed another appeal from that order of dismissal with the clerk of the Bankruptcy court, and the chief judges office for the Bankruptcy court, which is presently in the process of being docketed,

Also in the interim of this appeal pendency the debtors counsel also filed a motion to avoid the judicial lien which is challenged in the adversary proceeding, the adversary filed a response to the motion with the clerk of the Bankruptcy Court in which he incorporates the pleadings of the adversary complaint and response to motion to dismiss by reference thereto, the judicial lien is not a consumer credit debt, is not an auto accident or medical malpractice debt, and is distinguished.

the judicial lien is for the willful action of the debtor who opened the adversarys door to dangerous, and violent persons

Who were pounding upon the locked door attempting to gain entrance to do violence in adversary's home to the delitor, the adversary told delitor not to open the door, and wait for police that the adversary had called,

Delitor did open the door, was attacked and on the floor when adversary attempted to rescue her, He was injured in his left eye permanently, It is the tinke doctrine that is controlling as stated in the adversary's Response to the motion to dismiss

Respectfully

Jeff Lynch
